Dr. Dale E. Bauman Receives ADSA Fellow Award

Champaign, IL – The American Dairy Science Association is proud to announce Dr. Dale E. Bauman as the 2009 recipient of the ADSA Fellow award. The award was presented on Tuesday, July 14, 2009, during the awards ceremony at the ADSA Annual Meeting in Montreal, QC, Canada.

The purpose of the ADSA Fellow Award is to recognize Dairy Foods Division and Production Division members of the American Dairy Science Association who have rendered distinguished service to the dairy industry over 20 years or more. The winner must have made exceptional contributions to the dairy industry, to a dairy related discipline, or the American Dairy Science Association; in addition, the winner must be and have been a member of the American Dairy Science Association for a minimum of twenty years.

Dale E. Bauman is the Liberty Hyde Professor of Animal Science at Cornell University. Bauman is internationally recognized for his work on the metabolic regulation of nutrient use in ruminants, with an emphasis on lactation, growth, and milk synthesis. He has coauthored more than 650 scientific abstracts, peer-reviewed articles, invited reviews, and book chapters. Bauman has mentored 38 graduate students and several post docs. He was elected to the National Academy of Sciences in 1988. He joined ADSA in 1961, has served on numerous ADSA committees, and has received numerous ADSA awards.

It is with great pleasure that ADSA presents Dr. Dale E. Bauman with the 2009 ADSA Fellow award.
