Matthew Lucy Receives ADSA Fellow Award

Champaign, IL—The American Dairy Science Association® (ADSA®) is pleased to announce Matthew Lucy as the 2019 recipient of the ADSA Fellow Award. The award will be presented on Sunday, June 23, 2019, during the opening session at the ADSA Annual Meeting in Cincinnati, Ohio.

The purpose of the ADSA Fellow Award is to recognize dairy foods division and production division members of ADSA who have rendered distinguished service to the dairy industry over 20 years or more. The winner must have made exceptional contributions to the dairy industry, to a dairy-related discipline, or to ADSA; in addition, the winner must be and have been a member of ADSA for a minimum of 20 years.

Matthew Lucy is professor of animal science at the University of Missouri–Columbia. He became a member of ADSA when he was a graduate student. Since then he has served ADSA in a variety of capacities, with most of his work involving the Journal of Dairy Science ®. He served on the editorial board from 1997 to 2002 and the journal management committee from 2001 to 2003. Afterward, he served as a section editor for Physiology from 2006 to 2012. In 2014, Lucy became the editor-in-chief of the Journal of Dairy Science ®, and will complete his term at the end of 2019.

It is with great pleasure that ADSA presents Matthew Lucy with the 2019 ADSA Fellow Award.
