Paul Kononoff Receives Nutrition Professionals Inc. Applied Dairy Nutrition Award

Champaign, IL—The American Dairy Science Association® (ADSA®) is pleased to announce Paul Kononoff as the 2019 recipient of the Nutrition Professionals Inc. Applied Dairy Nutrition Award. The award will be presented on Monday, June 24, 2019, during the awards ceremony at the ADSA Annual Meeting in Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Nutrition Professionals Inc. Applied Dairy Nutrition Award was created to stimulate and recognize outstanding achievement in research, teaching, extension, or industry in applied dairy nutrition. The winner must have made significant contributions to the dairy industry in the area of applied dairy nutrition in one or more areas, such as applied nutrition research related to improved production efficiency, reproductive function, or herd health; integration of innovative nutritional management practices into profitable management systems; or education (including technology transfer and extension) and application of nutritional information to students, producers, and the public. He or she must have made the contribution within 10 years prior to the year of the award and been a member of ADSA for at least five consecutive years.

Paul Kononoff is a native of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada. He holds a BSA and an MSc in animal science from the University of Saskatchewan and a PhD in dairy nutrition from The Pennsylvania State University. Since 2005, Kononoff has been employed at the University of Nebraska–Lincoln. Kononoff’s research program is primarily focused on solving problems related to the feeding of the lactating dairy cow. Kononoff has several areas of research—namely, forage particle size and effective fiber, feed characterization, by-products, and energy metabolism. His research has impacted the dairy industry by improving the nutritional knowledge of dairy producers and nutritionists.

It is with great pleasure that ADSA and Nutrition Professionals Inc. present Paul Kononoff with the 2019 Nutrition Professionals Inc. Applied Dairy Nutrition Award.
